Re: 11.11.2019,23.48.20,support "Q: Laravel return multiple data in one array I have a function that retrieves from database two values. return Model::where('id',$data['id']) ->orWhere('clm_id','=',$data['id'])->first(); and I want to return both values into one array $dataArray = array(); $dataArray['id'] = $data['id']; $dataArray['clm_id'] = $data['clm_id']; return $dataArray; How should I return this data in one array? A: You can try returning a collection and then using the get method to retrieve the data. $dataArray = Model::where('id', $data['id']) ->orWhere('clm_id', $data['id']) ->get(); $dataArray = $dataArray->get(); 1. Technical Field The present invention relates to a liquid ejecting apparatus, a determination method, a recording medium, and the like. 2. Related Art In the past, a determination method (liquid ejecting method) which ejects fluid in a state of being mixed with flocculants, such as paper pulverization waste materials, is disclosed in JP-A-2008-104546. According to this, the flocculants become sludge in an aeration tank due to the fluid that is mixed with the flocculants, and this sludge (not only the fluid but also the sludge) is discarded (not reused). However, in the determination method disclosed in JP-A-2008-104546, the fluid that has been mixed with the flocculants and the sludge are both discarded as the waste in the aeration tank. Accordingly, there is a problem in that there is no contribution for recycling of resources.American Classic Cars From The 1960s Towing The Torch To The Second-Generation Coupe's Decline 3e33713323
